Doctoral Program
The Center for Doctoral Studies in Social and Behavioral Sciences (CDSS) offers PhD programs in Political Science, Psychology and Sociology in close collaboration with the School of Social Sciences at the University of Mannheim. Admission is based on merit and open to excellent candidates holding either a research oriented Bachelor’s or a Master’s degree. Students admitted to the PhD program do not have to pay any tuition fees and will be provided with a scholarship.

Fast Track Your Doctoral Degree
Students interested in pursuing a doctoral degree at the CDSS have the opportunity to apply for ‘Associate Membership’ in the second Master’s year. Application is open to all 2nd year M.A. students.

Individual Doctoral Studies
Many doctoral candidates choose to conduct their doctoral studies individually at a chair or an affiliated research institute. Prospective doctoral students interested in this option should consult job openings on offer.

Funding

Scholarships
The University of Mannheim awards around 250 scholarships per year and has one of the most differentiated scholarship systems among public higher education institutions in Germany. The University cooperates with a large network of partners and sponsors, e.g. the Deutschland Scholarship. The German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD) is the world’s largest funding organization for the international exchange of students and researchers. Check out their scholarship opportunities and plan ahead!

Jobs
Students who are considering a career in academia can take their first steps by working as a student assistant at one of the chairs or nearby research institutes. You can be involved in a research project and gain work experience while increasing your income! This is also the case if you work part-time or are doing an internship.
Life

- Creative, cosmopolitan, economically advanced – the UNESCO Creative City impresses with its numerous concerts, museums, theaters, and festivals such as the Enjoy Jazz festival and the International Film Festival.
- The stadium of the ‘Bundesliga’ soccer team Hoffenheim is nearby, and the home matches of ‘Mannheim Adler’ (Ice hockey) and ‘Rhein-Neckar-Löwen’ (Handball) take place in the impressive SAP-Arena just outside the city.
- Mannheim is a green city with many parks and recreation areas close to the city center.
- Take advantage of the excellent sports program for students: We offer sports that suit everybody’s requirements.
- Accommodation is reasonably priced: Compared to other nearby university cities, relatively cheap and comfortable appartments are found throughout the city center and close to the campus. As a student, you are also eligible to buy a semester ticket for regional transportation.
